AN INTERESTING QUESTION.

MAN A FIGHTING ANIMAL. We propose to raise a new question for philosophers to curs. Is man a fighting animal? That he does fight, no one will be likely to dispute But is fighting his natural worstlon ard in accordance with his character and destiny of his God. We do not see anything in his structure or organ ization indicative of narm to any other person or creature. The carnivorous animal, which we all know is predace us naturally, has teeth, claws and talons, to tear, rend and devour. Th herbivorous animal has horns and hoofs to defend itself when attacked, and nimble muscles to flee away with when pursued-Man has neither. He has neither offensive nor defensive weapons. A priori, we should infer that he was intended to be crever at peace with all created things. And so long as he kept fereer at peace with all created things. And so long as he kept his first estate he was probably not pognacious.

But man fell, and fell to Alghring. He has been fighting ever since. Practically be has become a fighting animal. He opposes everything in the universe. He wars on all the suimal king dom. He battles all other races of men. He quarrels with th various tribes and factions of his own race. He contends with all sects and creeds. He is at variance with the different is dividuals of his own party. He is in dispute with the member Verfly he is a fighting ar imal.

This work is not a mere repetition under a new form of old plots, characters and incidents, but one that noncoses the distinguishing characteristic of oxidinality in all these perficulars. Its subject is as universal as the air we breathe, and the wile it vividly portrays will serve as galding lights for tens of thou sands who might otherwise be led into corrowful relations with those about them. It exhibits in the broad, noodedy light of God's truth the Rights of Humanity—the Innate Santiment of Varine of every Soul—proves conductively that Trials, however severe, refine the Spirit, and that

"Ever the Right comes uppermost, And ever is justice done."

THE INDEPENDENT, NOBLE TONE

that pervades every chapter:

that pervades every chapter:
THE FREE, UNTRAMMELED EXPRESSION OF THOUGHT
that will distinguish it from the libraries of books now emanating from the American Press;

will at once commend the book to the

HEARTS AND HOMES OF THE PEOPLE.

It needs but to be read to be admired, and wherever one reads it a score will be sure to follow.

It is presented to the public resting solely on its own intrinsie merits, independent of the praise or sensure of crides—in full confidence that all who summer the spiritually true, and an effort to raise the fallen, will give to it a soul-welcome into the great field of Human ity.

From The Circlenati Christian Herald.

"There is much sdmirable character-painting in it, and many series of great pathos and beauty. It is in manner and metter, one of the most electric and one-resting books of its class."

"Its spirit is good and earnest, and must commend itself to every one who recognizes in literature not merery a pleasant intellectual ergoyme, t, but a useful medium for wholesome disclaime and moral cucate."
